

It's hard to believe that we are quickly approaching the end of the school year. I hope that the 5th graders are feeling a sense of accomplishment. They have worked hard and become responsible, independent workers and great readers!

Language Arts

We will be reading the story: The Hindenburg. The comprehension skills of main idea and details along with fact and opinion will be reviewed. For grammar, we will review adverbs and focus on using quotation marks in our writing. There will not be a spelling test.

Students are putting finishing touches on a booklet of original poetry. For homework they should be spending time memorizing the poem(s) of their choice to share with the class on Poetry Day sometime next week.

Social Studies

We will be concluding the year reviewing some concepts on government and their roots in our constitution. The geographic regions of our country will also be a focus while we participate in some map work noting specific landforms, climate, and resources of each.
